The Centre Learning Community Charter School believes that knowledge, mental and motor skills, creative self-expression, problem solving capabilities, a desire for learning, and self-respect are necessities for the development of social awareness, moral sensibility, and civic responsibility.

The Centre Learning Community Charter School believes that many agencies (the family unit, and other community organizations) must interact to promote positive affective development.

The Centre Learning Community Charter School shall provide instruction in general knowledge, in mental and motor skills, and in problem-solving techniques. The needs and interests of students will be considered within the limits of available resources.
